There is a new brand of pizza snacks out, and we had three classes of fourth-graders test them to see if they were any good.

They are called Pizza Munchees (made by Health Is Wealth). We had 65 kids try them, and here is what we found out:

Liked them and would recommend them to others 58

Didn't like them 7

Kids said they tasted like pizza, and they would have them again. Even kids who didn't like them said they would recommend them.

The kids who didn't like them just don't like pizza all that much.

Here are a few of the comments we heard from kids who were busy eating the Munchees: "The Pizza Munchees are soooo good." "Yummy, yummy for my tummy!" "I want a lot more." "Buy me some more." "I think the whole world would like them."

One girl who didn't like them said, "I didn't think it had enough cheese, and it's a little bit too spicy."

Pizza Munchees are made from soy cheese and have a whole-wheat shell. You can microwave them, so they are ready in just a few seconds. On the box, they say they are lower in salt and fat, but most kids only care about the taste, and we would like to have some more, please!
